

MRS. STEWART SPEAKS

Says G. O. P. Is Afraid To Print
League Covenant

[Special to The Herald.]

HARRODSBURG, Ky., Oct. 20.—Mrs.

Cora Wilson Stewart, originator of the moonlight schools in Kentucky, spoke in the interest of the Democratic campaign here this afternoon before a very large audience. She spent some time in a general explanation of the League of Nations and said that the Democrats were willing for every child to read the League Covenant, while the Republicans were even afraid to put it into their campaign handbooks.

She said Republicans were dally abandoning the sinking ship of Republicanism and coming under Democratic banner. "They are making fine Republicans," she said, the finer the faster they flop to Democratic standards. She paid tribute to the American soldier and also to the womanhood to America, saying that the reason the women are for Cox is because of the position taken by the Democratic platform and Governor Cox on education.

She said the negroes of the State were being told they had to vote the Republican ticket or they would be punished.
